

Minnesota's Public Health Standards Most in Need of Improvement

In Spring 2015, Minnesota's 48 community health boards (CHBs) identified three standards most in need of improvement, taken from the national public health standards developed by the Public Health Accreditation Board (version 1.5). While developed for the purpose of accreditation, these standards allow local, state, and tribal health departments to assess themselves consistently, and identify strengths and areas for improvement. The three standards identified by Minnesota's CHBs can be used to inform quality improvement plans and strategic plans.

REGIONAL PRIORITIES

Public health standards most frequently identified as needing improvement in each region

STATEWIDE PRIORITIES

Public health standards most frequently identified as needing improvement by Minnesota's 48 CHBs

